

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Lice on Cattle:

Fall is the correct time to treat cattle for lice. Such chemicals as Lindane, Malathion, Rotenone, Methoxychlor, Toxaphene and D.D.T. give good control. Two sprays or dustings two weeks apart are recommended. The new warble treatment CO-RAL is said to give adequate control when used for warbles. This may be a good reason to give this new product a try on at least a few cattle in the herd.

Bangs Vaccination:

An early clean up of harvesting should get the Bangs vaccination started early this year. There is good reason to start early, with so many of our cattle going into the States. Animals which can move freely across the border because they were vaccinated at the correct age are more attractive to the American buyer. It is good business management to make your product as attractive as possible to any potential buyer.

Areas such as the M.D. of Wainwright which are Bangs restricted areas get the vaccination at a very low cost to the farmer.

Cleaning up the Fruit Garden:

This is the time of year to prune out dead wood in Raspberry, Currant and Gooseberry bushes. This will make it easier to manage the good wood and to pick the fruit next year. To protect against winter injury it may help to put some straw over the bushes about freeze up. This will help to hold snow on the plants over winter. In the case of raspberries it is a good idea to bend the bushes over and cover the tips with soil.

A little care of the fruit bushes now can mean a lot more fruit next year.

What man of you, having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, saying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.

I say unto you, that likewise thy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons, which need no repentance.—Luke 15:4-7.

Local cadets end training

Seven weeks of outdoor life for some 500 Royal Canadian Army Cadets was climaxed here by a ceremonial marching out parade before several hundred spectators, including parents.

The cadets from the Lakehead, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, were inspected by Major General W. J. McGill, General Officer Commanding Prairie Command. The General told the cadets that "We look to the cadets who have been training here to set the pace. If you are a real self-starter then you will do great things not only for yourself, but for the Cadet Corps."

Named outstanding cadet was Cadet Donald Johnson of The Duke of Edinburgh Cadet Corps at Fort Churchill, Man., who leaves here to join his parents, Capt. and Mrs. H. D. Johnson, in Kingston, Ont. His father was recently appointed Protestant Army Chaplain in that city.

After a marchpast, the cadets performed a series of demonstrations on the camp parade ground. Providing amusement to spectators were a number of cadets carrying branches to act as trees during the stage-setting of a wooded area which came under attack by a cadet platoon.

A physical training demonstration received strong applause. PT and sports have played a large part in the cadets' life since July 5th. In the first week all cadets participated in a physical condition tests which resulted in a test failure rate of 49 percent. A second series of the same tests showed a marked improvement with only a 15 percent failure rate.

Ranging in age from 15 to 18 years, the cadets have received specialized training in signalling, driving and maintenance, basic cadet leadership training, instructing and rifle coaching. Instructors were members of the Regular Army, the Militia and the Cadet Services of Canada. Many are teachers in civilian life.

Colonel Lloyd E. Kenyon, who leaves here to become Chief of Staff at Prairie Command headquarters in Winnipeg, was Camp Commander during the Cadet Camp. Chief Instructor was Major Ralph Young of Winnipeg, Command Cadet officer for Prairie Command.

Some six of the cadets were from the 14 Canadian Hussars (Militia) Cadet Corps.

MADELINE LEVASON

NEW NEIGHBORS.

How do our immigrants feel about the arguments which rage around their "desirability"? Economists maintain that Canada needs more people; that a bigger population is the key to our continuing prosperity; that more people mean bigger markets, more business, more work and more jobs.

On the other hand, labor union officials have said an influx of newcomers can cause unemployment and lower wages. Other people worry about the political beliefs of immigrants, their health or financial status.

Perhaps earlier generations of Canadians worried about the same things. Our first settlers probably disputed the desirability of later arrivals. However, we know they pitched in and helped them and Canada benefited.

Of course conditions have changed. Today's newcomers can't carve their homes out of untouched lands. They must adapt to an established society, but they still need help.

We are told this makes immigration a challenge to all. People are still people, and those who drive to pull up stakes and gamble on a new land offer us a challenge to gamble on the benefits they can bring our country.

It seems to me that women particularly can make the gamble successful. Just plain neighborliness is a natural talent of women. I am a long way from my old age pension, but a lot of Canadians I was raised on a frontier where neighborliness was a way of life that women helped create.

Covered wagons bound for unpopulated sections of the Peace River District, were a familiar sight in my early schooldays. Aid for the travellers was a natural courtesy offered by all.

Men concerned themselves with feed and water for the horses, and whether the newcomers needed the lend of a plough. It was the women who opened their doors and provided hot meals, a loaf of bread for the travellers grub box or warmer clothing for a child.

I can't remember much discussion about politics, or other aspects of the desirability of the newcomers. I know that it was impetuous to ask questions. A man in buckskins who spoke with an Oxford accent or a burly European who had difficulty speaking any English were welcomed equally.

All were judged solely on their own behaviour and ability to adapt to the new surroundings. Everyone knew they would make their own work or else. That their coming would help make the new land prosper. To the women they meant new neighbors, and neighbors were a highly valued commodity.

So today, if conditions have changed, I can't believe that people have. If immigrants are still willing to gamble on us we should be willing to gamble or them. Their coming still means new prosperity for Canada.

Of course government departments and organizations supply help and advice, but friendship and

Use Rosary crosses to open Hull jail doors

The story came out how several inmates of Hull's jail managed to escape from their cells by using the cross on blessed rosaries as a key to unlock their iron doors.

The rosaries, bearing a maltese-type metal cross, had been given to the prisoners by the prison chaplain, Rev. Dominique Desjardins, a former curate of St. Gregory's parish in Vankeless Hill.

No attempt at an actual jail break was made. A former inmate of the Hull jail, who said he discovered this "old" use for the crosses, revealed the prisoners only intended to "play a trick" on the guards.

"When there were no guards around, we would insert the metal crosses in our cell locks and open the doors. Sometimes we would actually walk out of our cells and call the guards to ask them to lock us in. We had quite a ball—until someone reported us to the chaplain."

The prisoners thought it was great fun. But I had to answer to jail authorities for their actions. They didn't think it was so funny," reported Father Desjardins.

Understanding — neighborliness must come from individuals. Women must supply today's equivalent of a hot meal and a welcome to new neighbors.

Bishop Coleman reports on Lambeth Conference in England

"I am profoundly impressed with the realistic attitude of the Anglican Communion to economic, social and spiritual problems in the world," was the comment of the Rt. Rev. Michael Coleman, Bishop of Qu'Appelle on his recent return from the Lambeth Conference in England.

Held every 10 years, the conference is an opportunity for Bishops of the world-wide Anglican Church to discuss common problems and make recommendations.

Bishop Coleman said that although the Anglican Communion represents only seven percent of the world's Christian population, "it is an important seven percent."

"Its contacts with bodies outside the Anglican Communion are of vast importance—for example 230 million Orthodox Christians and four million Old Catholics are groups with whom we are very close," the Bishop said, adding that there is a growing consciousness of our relationship with the various evangelical bodies.

Bishop Coleman reported that when leaders of various Protestant bodies were introduced at the conference, they received great ovations from the assembled Bishops. He remembered especially the warm welcomes given the Moderator of the Church of Scotland, Bishop Otto Dibelius of the German Lutheran Church, and the presidents of the Methodist and Baptist churches in Britain.

"We all felt a sound sense of optimism concerning the future of the Anglican Communion and its divine commission in the world—especially with regard to providing a meeting ground for all Christian bodies—in God's good time," said Bishop Coleman.

When discussing social issues, Bishop Coleman said, the conference "had its feet firmly on the ground." On the subject of the population of the world, the conference agreed that planned families could be perfectly good, in the light of economic conditions in some countries. It was felt that housing must represent not just shelter, but a real home, and the importance of the home must be built up. Parental responsibilities must be asserted, and must not be left to the state or the educational authorities.

On the question of relations between the races, Bishop Coleman stated that the Anglican Communion is a "people of peace."

Crude oil strike near Consort by Canadian firm

A significant light oil discovery has been made in the Consort area by Canadian Chief Petroleum Ltd., an Edmonton-based Canadian independent firm. The discovery was made recently in the Viking sand, one and a half miles southeast of Consort. The gravity of the crude is 36 degrees.

Canadian Chief Petroleum 6-11 is the seventh well in the company's exploration program in this area. Canadian Chief Petroleum discovered the South Park oil field, gas field and now has recorded the first major oil strike in the area.

The company holds a block of some 45,000 acres in the immediate vicinity. Testing is to continue. —The Enterprise, Consort, Alta.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason
EDMONTON—Alberta farmers are making more money this year, according to figures compiled and released by the provincial bureau of statistics.

For the first seven months of the year, farm income from grain and livestock totalled $233,352,000, which is $22,640,000 more than the figure for the same period of 1957.

The increase in total income was recorded despite a continued drop in earnings from grain. The difference was in greatly increased sales of livestock.

Grain income dropped to $109,366,000 from $116,042,000 a year earlier. But this was more than offset by livestock earnings, which rose to $123,986,000 from $94,670,000 in the January-July period of last year.

The bureau of statistics monthly report on the province's economy contained a number of interesting features.

For example, despite the recession retail trade is holding its own. For the whole province, retail trade was up 4 per cent at $583,082,000. But a breakdown shows Albertans are spending most of their money on the necessities of life and de-emphasizing the luxuries.

Grocery and combination stores reported an 8.2 per cent increase in trade, and department stores reported business up 10.2 per cent. But motor vehicle dealers felt the pinch with trading down 11.7 per cent, and garages and filling station reported a 4.9 per cent drop in business.

The index of new car and truck sales showed a drop of 16.3 per cent to 26,121 units sold in the first six months of the year. The value of new vehicle sales dropped 14.3 per cent to $67,839,000.

You probably haven't heard the end of the Hargrave case at Brooks, even though the government has decided to reinstate P. D. Hargrave, the man who was dismissed from his post as superintendent of the horticultural station in the southern town.

For the record, here is what happened: Hargrave, who ran the station for 19 years, was given the axe for what was termed "unsatisfactory administration."

The main complaint against him was that he used equipment from the horticultural station on his own farm nearby.

The thing became a sort of political football and was kicked around in the papers for awhile. Then the case was turned over to a joint committee of the government and the Civil Service Association for investigation. The investigation resulted in his reinstatement.

However, there still has been no answer to the story about the assistant superintendent of the station who committed suicide after repeatedly complaining to the government about conditions there.

One theory is that the government became panicky and decided to get rid of the man after it heard that details of the cases had been turned over to a lawyer-member of the Opposition in the Legislature. Then the government had to back down when the investigating committee decided Hargrave's dismissal wasn't justified.

The firing of a senior civil servant, especially one with so many years of service, is always tricky business. It's almost certain someone will be asking the government to answer the unanswered questions in the Hargrave case.

The National Northern Development Conference here in the capital last week may have cleared the air regarding the route for a proposed railway to the Northwest Territories.

At the conference, federal Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton gave this blunt warning: If proponents of the western route through Grimshaw don't stop squabbling with those who favor the eastern route through Waterways, Alberta may not get the railway at all.

On the final day of the conference, delegates passed without discussion a resolution calling for an immediate start on a railway following a route "which would contribute the most to the economy of Canada."

Observers saw in this an indication that the squabbling has been decided to settle their differences rather than let the railway go through Saskatchewan,

SPEAKING OF THE WEATHER

Don't remember who said it, but someone is quoted as saying that "everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it." This is not entirely true. Because there has been rainmakers, hail dispersion programs, and in some fruit growing districts, fire pots put out to keep frost away. Man is always trying to improve upon nature, or prevent some of her destructive tendencies at critical periods in the growing season. Some measures have been quite successful but in the end nature generally takes her toll.

In this part of the province excellent weather continued throughout the seeding operations. This was followed by a dry period practically throughout the summer months, with the exception of the odd shower here and there that blessed the parching fields. Until only a couple of weeks ago, a heavy rainfall occurred. This was after about 80 per cent of the crop was harvested. The remarkable part is that the grain threshed before the heavy rain is grading No. 2. The yield is not as heavy as usual but considered very good under the circumstances. This is no doubt attributed to the fact that farming methods have and are improving. No destructive hail or wind storms have been reported in this immediate area. Something to be thankful for on Thanksgiving day.

IT'S NOT ENOUGH TO BE SOBER

However true, the hackneyed cliché "If you drink, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink" is far from being the last word in highway safety. The Canadian Highway Safety Conference has warned, "To be sober doesn't mean you're safe."

There's virtue in sobriety at the wheel of a car," said W. Arch Bryce, general manager of the Conference, "in that you can make the most of the wit and co-ordination you possess. But if you misuse those faculties and neglect your senses, you can be a worse driver than a drunken drunk. Don't pride yourself on having had nothing to drink before you set out on the highway, then proceed to menace your own life and the lives of all other people in the vicinity by ignoring the measures of safety that should be inherent in every motorist."

The Conference, calling attention to the steadily growing number of vehicles on Canada's streets and roads, stresses the vital need for every motorist to take his driving seriously. "Driving is no longer the pleasure it was only a few years ago. It's a serious business where frivolous, silly and ignorant driving can result in serious economic loss, painful injury or death," warns Mr. Bryce.

WIG-WAG SIGNALS AT RAILWAY CROSSINGS

(Stony Plain Reporter)
"Wig-Wag" warning signals at the main street C.N.R. crossing in Stony Plain is now assured. The stumbling block in the past few years has been the $4,000 installation price which the town felt they could not afford, plus $400 per year maintenance.

According to the latest information this week, the federal government and the C.N.R. will now bear the full $4,000 installation charge.

The above information, given to the Reporter by Hugh M. Horner, M.P. for this constituency, is fully corroborated by the Hon. Geo. Hees, Federal Minister of Transport, and much of the credit goes to Dr. Horner who first broached this subject which led to the amendment in the crossing act which was passed a week ago in parliament. Under the new set-up the Railway Crossing Fund will be responsible for 80 per cent of the installation and the C.N.R. 20 per cent.

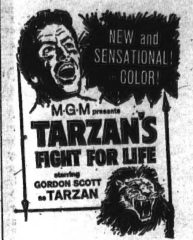

In speaking on the subject, Dr. Horner explained that in this constituency, many towns were off the highway and the railway ran across the main roads, making the situation extremely hazardous.

ALL-EXPENSE TOUR TO
ROYAL WINTER FAIR

Calgary, Alberta,
September 15, 1956.

Mr. H. G. Thunell, Publisher,

Dear Sir:
You will be interested to know that the Canadian Pacific, this Fall, will operate its fifth annual Semi All-Expense Tour for the farmers of Alberta to the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto.

Air-conditioned sleeping cars will leave Calgary and Edmonton Thursday, November 13th, arriving in Toronto early morning of Sunday, November 16th. A full week will be spent in Toronto, and the party will return leaving Toronto Saturday, November 22nd, arriving home in Alberta Tuesday morning, November 25th.

I am enclosing a copy of our brochure which we have sent to some 5,000 farmers in Alberta, outlining full particulars of the Tour.

The last four years our Semi All-Expense Tours have been very successful, and it is expected that this year the numbers from Alberta will warrant a special train.

Yours sincerely,
A. K. Stewart,
District Passenger Agent.

THE Homemakers

At this time of year a majority of families are enjoying wild duck in some way, shape or form. The ducks shot in the early part of the hunting season have numerous pinfeathers and are difficult to clean. In most cases homemakers dread the thought of plucking them, however, one can skin the bird and upon cooking fasten bacon strips across the breast or legs to provide additional fat since duck meat is usually dry. Another method is to dip ducks in a mixture of 3/4 lb. of melted paraffin to 7 quarts of boiling water and let harden. Strip off the paraffin and feathers at the same time.

For those who dislike the wild duck flavor, soak the bird in salty water for a short period before cooking.

As far as cooking is concerned, each homemaker has their own personal preference of preparing duck, however, the following are a few additional suggestions you may try:

1. Place half an orange in the cavity of the bird and several orange slices on the breast of the bird and cook at 400 deg. F. for about 20 minutes. Pour scalded orange juice over the hot bird and return to 350 deg. F. and roast for one hour longer. This method also removes some of the gamy flavor and adds something to it which you cannot describe. In most cases, birds are not stuffed since the stuffing absorbs the gamy flavor and really is not very palatable, however, this varies with individual taste.

2. Another suggestion is to place an apple, onion or stock of celery in the cavity. Rub the cavity with salt and pepper and fasten bacon slices across the breast and legs of the bird. Place in a hot oven 450 deg. F. and sear till golden brown. Reduce the temperature to 325 deg. F., add about 1 cup of water, cover and continue roasting until tender. Orange, pineapple or grapefruit juice may be used in place of water.

3. RAGOUT OF DUCK or CHICKEN:— 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons cooking oil or COSTLY BANG'S DISEASE FOUGHT: "Hey, take it easy, Doc!" Drawing a blood sample for a brucellosis test in Dr. F. O. Reid, regional veterinarian, Health of Animals Division, Canada Department of Agriculture.

A few laughs

"The usual, Joe," sighed the harried commuter. "Gotta catch my train."

The bartender set up five Manhattan in a row and the customer gulped down the middle three, leaving the first and last drink on the bar. Then he dashed out.

A man at the bar turned to the bartender and asked, "Why did he leave those two drinks?"

"Oh, no," shrugged the bartender. "He does it all the time. He says the first one always tastes terrible and the last one always gets him into trouble at home."

"I'm awfully sorry lady," the man said, "but I just ran over your cat. Naturally I'll replace him."

"Well, don't just stand there," she snapped. "Get to work on the mouse in my kitchen."

An old gent promoted a tempting young thing—or thought he did—at one of Florida's snootiest flophouses. After money-talking her into marriage, he brought her home to his Park Avenue town house where his butler eyed him coolly.

"Isn't she something?" gloated the old man.

"Indeed she is," said the butler "but I do hate, sir, to see a man begin a full day's work so very late in the afternoon."

Brucellosis control expanded

Prince Edward Island was the first area to be certified.

Overall level of infection in the herd is about one percent. In some areas, however, as high as five percent of the animals have been found to be infected. On a herd basis, the rate is roughly 14 percent, although in some areas this figure has been as high as 25 percent.

Brucellosis costs the livestock industry about $9,000,000 annually through decreased milk production, loss in calf crop and the subsequent replacement of breeding stock.

The national eradication program was started in April, 1957.

Tents carry wartime memories

The following letter was received from RQMS W. Lloyd which will be of interest to former members of the 60th Battery, R.C.A.

No doubt you will be surprised to hear from me at this time, but ran across a bit of news which I thought might be of interest to yourself and to other former members of the 60th F4, Bty RCA.

During my tour of duty at Clear Lake Cadet Camp as RQMS from 11 June to 11 August '58, I had occasion to check and found, to my surprise, that I was camping with my old friends and fond memories once again.

As you no doubt remember, it was on the 23 July 1940, that our Battery at Anerold was mobilized for active duty in World War II.

It was also there that we drew in so many boys and men from all over Southern Saskatchewan. Now here is the surprise. On one particular bell tent which was in constant use this summer, I found inscribed the following Regimental Nos. and names. In some cases the numbers were a bit blurred, but names were certainly familiar:

L35088 Dennis Schlenko, Scots-guard; L35083 Ralph Williamson, Glen Bain; L35089 Ronald Wright, Anerold; L35084 Bob Anderson, Hansmurray; and in big letters across the tent: 60th Bty, RCA, Anerold.

My curiosity aroused, I searched further and found another tent inscribed with names that were familiar and in some cases distinguished. Eddie Knight, holder of a Distinguished Conduct Medal, won at Otterloo, Holland, 16th April 1945. Eddie was from Estevan. Charlie Angus from Kincaid, I believe. Alex Clements from Blandif, I believe. Eric Beltharts from Kincaid.

I don't know just where all these camps are now Eddie Knight is still in Estevan as far as I know, but I'm not sure of the whereabouts of the remainder.

I thought this might be of interest to your wide circulation of the remainder.

In Oriental mythology the elephant is a symbol of temperance, eternity and sovereignty.

Assigned to the Portage division, with headquarters in Winnipeg, it will give operating officers maximum efficiency in covering territory.

Some features of the car, which was purchased in Winnipeg and equipped at Weston shops with devices for operating on the rails, are that it can seat nine people, transport workers and equipment wherever necessary, or be used as an ambulance in case of emergency.

The car was turned over to a brief ceremony attended by two Canadian Pacific directors, Sir Edward Peacock, G.C.V.O., of London, England, and H. E. Seiler, C.B.E., Winnipeg; G. E. Mayne, regional vice-president, and other local officers.

Power Corporation display at World Power meeting

A Saskatchewan Power Corporation display illustrating electrical and natural gas developments in Saskatchewan was among those on view in the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal September 7-11, as a feature of the sectional meeting of the World Power Conference.

The occasion marks the first time Canada has played host to the World Power Conference for any of its meetings since the organization was founded in 1924.

The Saskatchewan Power Corporation display includes a large relief map of the province, on which major electrical and natural gas transmission lines are shown, along with power generating stations and potential hydro-electric sites, including the federal-provincial South Saskatchewan River project.

A second major item in the display is a detailed scale model of the Power Corporation's new $40,000,000 Boundary Dam generating station being built near Estevan. The model shows the entire project, including the generating station itself, the Boundary Dam on Long Creek which was built to impound cooling water for the plant, and the lignite coal stripping operation which will supply the operating fuel.

On the map unit in the display, electrical transmission lines are shown in the form of miniature high-tension power poles, connected with thread lines in which different colors indicate different line capacities. Natural gas transmission line routes are traced by small-gauge copper wire stimulating the pipelines, while small models mark power generating stations and potential river dam sites for possible hydro-electric development.

Flanking the map are display panels of photographs of various forms of power development, with ribbon indicators leading from each photograph to approximate locations on the map.

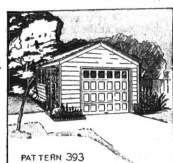

The map display was prepared and assembled by the Power Corporation's illustrating staff, in a special adaptation of a base relief map of the province supplied by the Department of Natural Resources. The Boundary Dam project was constructed by a Toronto firm.
